Meet Kara Swanson

Kara Swanson, 2001 Annual Conference keynote speaker, comes to us from Center Line, Michigan. Ms. Swanson suffered a traumatic brain injury in 1996 when a minivan running a red light struck her car. The accident caused few visible injuries, but left Kara with a “mild” brain injury that effectively ended life as she had known it.

Prior to her accident, Kara’s life had been active and full. She studied social work at the University of Michigan and was a member of the women’s basketball team. She also coached high school basketball and softball, motivating others with her inspirational talks. After college she worked as a catering manager at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Kara has spent the months and years since the accident learning how to cope with her “new” life and make the most of it. Though her life has changed radically, Kara is still much the same person she used to be. Her yearning to share with others and her sense of humor remain intact.

Although Kara can no longer work in a traditional setting, she uses her motivation and education to help others who have suffered brain injuries. In an effort to reach out, she wrote a book in which she shares her experiences about the daily obstacles faced by closed head injury survivors and their families. The book, Plu Carry the Fork!, also provides useful information about caregiving, and dealing with physicians and lawyers.

Kara also brings her experience to medical professionals and community groups. She has been keynote speaker for the annual meetings of the Brain Injury Associations of Maryland and Georgia, and has addressed numerous support groups and TBI-related organizations in her native Michigan.

While she still struggles daily with impairments, Kara lives on her own and cares for her father, who also has suffered cognitive damage due to multiple strokes.

Kara has learned to face the challenges of dealing with a disability by reaching out to others through her inspirational writing, and by actively celebrating everyday life. In May 2000 the Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan (Detroit Medical Center/Wayne State University) honored her for “the outstanding accomplishments of an individual who has been living with a disability for less than five years.” The award was appropriately called the Rising Star Award for Excellence in Achievement.

Please plan to join us in welcoming Ms. Swanson on October 6th in Wilsonville. The Association wishes to express its appreciation to Care Medical Equipment, Incorporated for its generous assistance in making Ms. Swanson’s appearance possible. We also appreciate the assistance provided by Kara’s publisher, Rising Star Press.

Annual Conference Speakers

The Association is happy to announce that the following following speakers will be presenting at the annual conference on October 6th:

Mark J. Ashley, M.S., CCC-SLP, C.C.M....is Co-Founder and President of Centre for Neuro Skills (CNS), which provides post-acute brain injury rehabilitation programs at facilities in Bakersfield and Encino, California, and Irving, Texas. He also serves as Executive Director and is a board member of the Western Institute of Rehabilitation and is an Adjunct Professor in the Southern Illinois University's Department of Communication Disorders and Sciences.

Mr. Ashley has published two books — Traumatic Brain Injury Rehabilitation and Working with Behavior Disorders: Strategies for Traumatic Brain Injury Rehabilitation as well as numerous research articles dealing with neurological rehabilitation and rehabilitative outcomes.

Dannielle L. Erb, M.D. ...owns and operates Brain Rehabilitation Medicine, LLC in Portland, OR. From 1991 to 2001, Dr. Erb was Director of the Inpatient Brain Injury and Medical Director of Re-Entry Services with Rehabilitation Medicine Associates in Portland.

Dr. Erb received her medical degree at OHSU and completed her residency in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center in Denver, CO where she was named Chief Resident. She also serves on the Advisory Council of the Brain Injury Association of Oregon.

Gary Gitner... is a Public Affairs Specialist with the Social Security Administration(SSA) in Beaverton, OR. He has over 20 years experience with the SSA as a claims representative and supervisor in several SSA field offices. Since enactment of the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999" (TWWIIA), Mr. Gitner has been involved in developing and disseminating information to the public regarding the Act and its implementation in Oregon. In this capacity, he is working with an interagency work group including representatives from the Oregon Department of Human Services, the Oregon Disabilities Commission and the Commission for the Blind.

Janna Starr...is Executive Director of the Oregon Council on Developmental Disabilities. Previously, she was Director of Public Policy for the national Brain Injury Association in Alexandria, VA, leading BIA's Public Policy and Legislative Advocacy efforts. Prior to that, Janna was Senior Policy Associate for United Cerebral Palsy Associations, Inc.; Policy Analyst for the Oregon Advocacy Center and Executive Director of The Arc of Oregon.

Among her several publications on health care and long-term care needs, Janna authored Public Spending on Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI): A Snapshot of FY 1998 in the USA under contract to BIA.

Douglas A. Swanson... is a partner with Swanson, Thomas and Coon in Portland, OR. He was admitted to the Oregon State Bar in 1980. He is a magna cum laude graduate of the University of New Mexico and obtained his J.D. degree from Lewis and Clark Law School.

Mr. Swanson has represented over 2,000 injured workers over the last 20 years. He has particular interest and experience in representing people who have suffered head injuries, and in litigating toxic chemical cases. He has authored several articles on work-related injuries as well as being a contributor to the Oregon State Bar Continuing Legal Education Textbook on Workers' Compensation. He is a past president of Oregon Workers' Compensation Attorneys (OWCA), and in 2001 he was honored with the Douglas W. Daughtry Professionalism Award from the Workers' Compensation Section of the Oregon State Bar.

President's Corner

You've heard the saying: "it takes a village to raise a child". Persons involved with brain injury certainly recognize that an extended community of caring people helps survivors and their families travel the long road to recovery after injury.

Recently, representatives of BIAOR attended a three-day training by BIA USA covering the Supreme Court's landmark Olmstead decision. That decision interpreted Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and its implementing regulation as requiring States to administer their services, programs, and activities "in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of qualified individuals with disabilities." A June 19th Executive Order by President Bush stated that the Federal Government must assist States and localities to ensure all Americans "the opportunity to live close to their families and friends, to live more independently, to engage in productive employment, and to participate in community life."

Ensuring such opportunity will require expanding community-based supports so that there is real choice to live in less institutional settings. The BIA training provided information on options for enhanced home and community services to persons with disabilities. But the central message was that cross-disability partnerships will be crucial in bringing about effective plans for State Olmstead decision compliance. In Oregon, an informal Olmstead working group including BIAOR and other disability advocacy organizations has been formed and will begin meeting in early September to develop a shared vision and action plan.

What does all this imply for BIAOR? Here is at least a partial list:

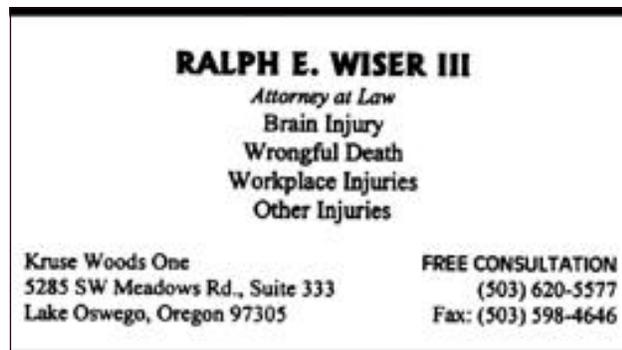

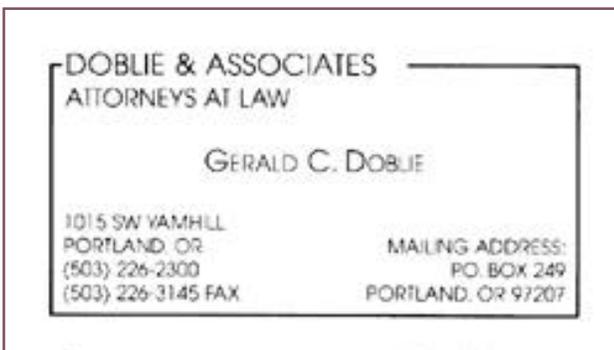

1. We are not alone. Persons with brain injury have unique issues, but also have much in common with other disability groups. BIAOR must continue to be a part of cross-disability coalitions to effectively pursue shared goals.

2. BIAOR should enhance its community base and presence by encouraging local chapters or councils within the Association structure. An initial step in this direction was accomplished last year with the affiliation agreement between BIAOR and BISG Portland. Full merger will be pursued over the next few months.
3. BIAOR must strengthen partnerships with community-based organizations that are or could be providing services to persons with brain injury. We recognize that organizations too numerous to list here perform services such as hosting brain injury support groups, providing vocational services, etc. As an example of one effort to improve our ties with such organizations, BIAOR recently initiated a dialogue with the several Independent Living Centers regarding participation in the Oregon Brain Injury Resource Network. If agreement is reached, the Centers would provide a local point of contact for persons seeking resources and help OBIRN maintain up to date resource information.

Cross-disability collaboration is critical to our mission of "improving the quality of life of persons with brain injury..." I invite your ideas and involvement as we work with others for improved home and community services for all who need them. I hope to see you at the Annual Conference on October 6th.

Bill Olson
President

Mentoring

by Paul Zosel, Eugene

Learning can be a challenging task following an acquired brain injury (ABI). People who are there to listen, help and guide have a great impact on choices for those relearning old and gaining new skills following an injury.

I have been involved with training and mentoring programs for many years. Currently, I am working with an active board of directors, local secondary and elementary teachers and the Counseling, Family and Human Services Program at the University of Oregon to develop the Community Mentor Network (CMN).

The CMN identifies teens with acquired brain injury (ABI) and students who have similar challenges as a special needs group in our community. Program goals are: 1) to provide social and rehabilitative support to teens through recreational/social activities; and 2) to advocate for and support activities which help to integrate teens into the social life of their families, schools, and communities. The following programs are designed to work in combination to help establish the needed community support.

Tai Chi

An after school Tai Chi program will be offered for middle school students starting January 2002 school year. The focus will be to develop participants balance, confidence, focus, flexibility and to learn skills to better the health of both body and mind. Additional information on the Tai Chi program is available.

Community Education Program (CEP)

This program will include information illustrating the traumatic social effects brought on by severe acquired brain injury and similar challenges present for students in school. There is a lecture process that will be followed by structured exercises to develop communication and awareness skills. The program will include the participation of mentors who have participated with CMN programs.

Mentor Training

Internships with the Community Mentor Network are planned for undergraduate and graduate students in the Counseling, Family and Human Services Program at the University of Oregon. This program will provide skill training for the Mentor Coordinator to develop skills in working with six mentors during the Winter and Spring quarters.

For additional information about the Community Mentor Network, please contact Paul Zosel at (541) 686-1842.

Severe spasticity is tight, stiff muscles that make movement – especially of the arms and legs – difficult or uncontrollable.

Has a brain injury given you or someone you care for this symptom?

There are ways to help control even the most severe spasticity in adults and children.

Presents:

Help and Hope 2001: Reclaiming Life After Brain Injury

A conference for brain injury survivors and their families, professionals, service providers & all others interested in brain injury.

Featuring Keynote Speaker Kara Swanson

After sustaining a brain injury in an auto accident in 1996, Kara Swanson realized the many challenges and difficulties survivors of TBI face. Her determination to find and utilize the support and information that could aid in her recovery eventually became her first published book, I'll Carry the Fork! Recovering a Life After Brain Injury. Kara offers a humorous and uplifting message, detailing her own recovery and sharing vital information designed to help survivors and their support people, as well as professional members of the brain injury community.

BIA Hosts Post-Olmstead Training in Portland

Marilyn Hern, Idaho (L) & David Jensen, Portland (R) team with BIA Executive Director Allan Bergman (C) at BIA's Post Olmstead Training Conference in Portland. Marilyn and David spoke to conference attendees about their personal experience with brain injury.

On August 14–16 in Portland, BIA National in cooperation with the Independent Living Research Utilization program (ILRU), conducted training for disability advocates from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Alaska. The overall objective of the training was to prepare advocates and state officials to advance implementation of the Supreme Court's 1999 Olmstead decision within each state.

In Olmstead, the Court held that it is a violation of the ADA for states to discriminate against people with disabilities by providing services in institutions when the individual could be served more appropriately in a community-based setting. At BIAOR's Annual Conference on October 6th, Janna Starr will be presenting on the implications of the decision and identifying opportunities to for cross-disability advocacy and action to increase independent living options.

A recent study by the National Conference of State Legislatures reported that for 1999, Oregon was the only State to spend more of its Medicaid long-term care funds on home care (56%) than on institutional care (44%). On this measure, at least, Oregon is a national leader. Should we be satisfied? Or, should we be promoting a higher performance standard? Join us on October 6th to learn more and decide for yourselves.

Hello all! For this issue I want to introduce you to the Traumatic Brain Injury Technical Assistance Center (TBI-TAC) website. TBI-TAC is supported and administered by the Department of Health and Human Services' Health Resources and Services Administration, Maternal and Child Health Bureau. It was established to help States in the planning and development of effective programs that improve access to health and other services for individuals with TBI and their families. However, the site also has information that others may find useful and interesting. Clicking on the Tool Box link allows searchers to access products developed by the participating States. From this page the Full Text Online link will bring up full text documents related to brain injury. Examples include:

- When Your Child's Head Has Been Hurt
This publication helps families, school nurses, pediatricians, and other children's health specialists identify post concussive disorders after discharge from the emergency department or hospital. Its layout and language level are designed to be easily accessible to the general public.
- Traumatic Brain Injury in Children and Teens: A National Guide for Families
This parents' guide is intended to help families whose children have sustained brain injuries understand and cope with their child's injury and treatment, locate the appropriate health care services, and find ways to pay short and long term bills. Divided into seven progressive chapters, the guide walks parents through each step of their child's recovery from the hospital to the home. Real life examples, charts, and questionnaires personalize the text. (This is a large document. It may take awhile to download and print.)

- Traumatic Brain Injury Facts: Vocational Rehabilitation and Employment Services
This fact sheet provides an overview of TBI for vocational rehabilitation counselors. It also offers strategies for improving employment outcomes after a brain injury
- Family Advocacy Skills Training (F.A.S.T.): A Handbook for Family Advocates
This handbook presents skills that can help family members find, collect, and organize information to understand the present situation of the individual with a brain injury and his or her family, describe the changes that each would like to make, and create a plan to make those changes. (Large document)
- Facts About Concussion and Traumatic Brain Injury
This illustrated guide contains a mini glossary of medical terms, lists of expected physical, cognitive, and behavioral changes, and helpful tips for individuals with TBI and their family members.

Some of these publications are also available in Spanish.
